Tami at the shop

Today is not a school day.
Tami is with her friends.
They go to the shop to buy toys.
Tami walks in front of her friends.

There is a man at the door to the shop.
“We want to buy some gifts,” Tami tells him.

The man smiles.
He lets the girls in.

The children walk around the shop.
Tami stops to look at a shelf.
The shelf has many toys.
Tami calls her friends.

The friends look at the toys.

Tami picks a toy car.

“My brother likes cars. This is for him,” she says.

Her friends pick toys too.

The children want to pay for the toys.
Dani has no money.
She cannot pay for her toy.
She wants to return the toy.

“Let me pay for your toy,” Tami says.

Tami pays for the toy.

The children walk home.

‘Vroooooom!’ A bus drives past them.

There is dust all over.

The girls walk away.

“Oh no! We are covered in dust,”
Dani says.

They help each other to clean the dust.

They walk home.

They are happy to have toys.

They have gifts to give their friends.

“I am very happy we went shopping,”
Dani says.
