QUESTION ONE

SGK LTD.

SGK Ltd. was founded by P. L. Shah in 1987. The company is in the business of departmental stores, retailing and general merchandising. Since year 2001, the company has been operating at its flagship building SGK plaza. SGK Ltd. has been characterised by the presence of a major controlling shareholder. For example, in July 2003, the then Chief Executive Officer (CEO) and chairman, A. K. Singh Shah, the second son of the founder, owned 67.75 percent of the company's shares.

In 1998, SGK Ltd. was listed on the National Stock Exchange. However, since year 2003, the Shah family has been trying to delist and privatise the company. After two failed attempts, the Shah family finally succeeded and the company was delisted on 24 September 2008.

In year 2010, P. L. Shah made an offer to about 500 minority shareholders who had held onto their shares in the delisted company. This offer represented an 18% premium over its market value and well above the price offered to other shareholders for the delisting in year 2010. However, some of these minority shareholders were still unwilling to take up the share buyback offer, and were holding out for a better offer.

Board of Directors

During the third and successful privatisation attempt, the board of SGK Ltd. was chaired by Arnold Baraka, a former partner at Success Solutions, an international audit firm. Apart from Arnold Baraka, there were three other directors with experience in accounting, business management and the retail industry. Among the four directors, three were serving as non-executive independent directors.

Throughout the previous years, there was at least one Shah family member on the board. However in year 2009, A. K. Shah, the CEO and the majority shareholder of the company since 1998, stepped down from the board, after he was alleged to have been involved in an illegal drug trading scandal. With this development, for the first time in the company's history, there was no Shah family member on the board.

According to SGK Ltd.'s Corporate Governance Report in 2010, the board would be responsible for enhancing long-term shareholder value and the overall management of the Group. This includes reviewing the Group's performance, approval of corporate strategies and promoting high standards of corporate governance. The board delegated some of its functions to the board committees, namely the audit committee, nominating committee and the remuneration committee.
